engagement

SHARITAGE

...aims to promote diversity and inclusion in university heritage education by developing innovative digital tools that enable communities to actively engage with their own heritage. The project aims to bring community voices and perspectives to the forefront of university teaching and learning.

Building on the ArchaeoTrail system – an open platform for creating smartphone-based heritage tours – SHARITAGE will add technical features that enhance accessibility, and will create comprehensive guidelines and adaptable teaching resources. This will support the integration of the ArchaeoTrail system into heritage curricula across Europe, encouraging more participatory and inclusive approaches to cultural education.

ArchaeoTrail System

The ArchaeoTrail system consists of a web portal and a smartphone app. The web portal allows archaeologists and others to create interactive trails featuring geo-referenced stations with text, images, audio, video, and quizzes about archaeological sites. The accompanying app enables visitors to explore these trails through self-guided tours – all completely free of charge.
